FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SQE Training Announces New Agile Testing, Mobile Testing Events

JACKSONVILLE, FL — SQE Training, a TechWell company, has announced two new series of training events in agile testing and mobile testing. Six agile testing and three mobile testing training events are planned in cities across the U.S.

“Software testing is changing with new challenges almost every day,” said Stephanie Fender, Senior Training Manager. “We’ve built these training events to help today’s test/QA professionals meet those challenges.”

The agile testing event will feature the Agile Tester Certification and Agile Test Automation—ICAgile courses, while the mobile testing event has the Mobile Application Testing and Mobile Test Automation Workshop courses.

- Agile Tester Certification is appropriate for both novice and experienced software testers, as well as developers expected to test within agile teams. Participants will learn the role of the tester in an agile team and explore agile testing processes in this interactive workshop.
- Agile Test Automation—ICAgile is for agile team members involved in testing and deployment. Product owners and managers will gain important insights into the benefits and trade-offs related to agile test automation. Participants will explore the many ways automation supports agile testing with vendor-neutral examples, approaches, and tools.
- Mobile Application Testing is appropriate for both novice and experienced software testers who are new to mobile application testing, as well as business analysts and test managers with responsibility for mobile software. Participants will explore usability across multiple platforms and resolutions, network and security testing, mobile UI automation, performance testing, and more.
- Mobile Test Automation Workshop is the follow-on, companion course to Mobile Application Testing, and covers how to use Selenium and the cloud to test mobile websites. The audience includes software test professionals and software developers.

Additionally, several of the courses are accredited training for industry-recognized certifications and/or offer PMI PDUs for project management professionals. Details on the agile testing event, including dates and locations, can be found at sqetraining.com/agile-week, and details on the mobile testing event can be found at sqetraining.com/mobile-week.
