STARWEST Virtual Conference to Be Held October 5–6

STREAMING LIVE FROM THE DISNEYLAND HOTEL IN ANAHEIM, CALIFORNIA

Jacksonville, FL, September 9, 2016 — The STARWEST (Software Testing Analysis & Review West) Virtual Conference will be streaming live on October 5–6, 2016, from the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim, California. The free virtual conference will focus on software testing and quality. Attendees can watch keynote presentations, select industry technical presentations, and various speaker interviews as they are happening live. Plus, attendees will be able to visit the virtual Expo, learn about the most recent solutions from top industry providers, and chat live with other online attendees as sessions are happening.

This year’s keynote speakers include renowned testing professionals: Selena Delesie from Delesie Solutions, Casey Rosenthal, Netflix’s engineering manager, TechWell’s own Lee Copeland, Ipreo’s Director of Software Test Engineering, Mary Thorn, and Jared Richardson, principal consultant of Agile Artisans.

Keynote presentations include topics such as Lessons Learned in Leadership: Give Your Team the Edge, Engineering Trust in Complex Systems, Optimize Your Test Automation to Deliver More Value, Take Charge of Your Testing Career: Bring Your Skills to the Next Level, and Lightning Strikes the Keynotes.

“At STAR conference’s ninth virtual event, STARWEST Virtual 2016, TechWell aims to connect new and returning virtual attendees to in an effort to discuss and share the improvement of software development and quality”, said Alison Wade, TechWell President Conferences, Training and Consulting.
